

Mrs. Hill's and Mrs. Williams' second grade class has been learning about animals in the Arctic. Each student had to choose and research their animal using different resources. After researching, they had to write their report, create a diorama at home, and present their project to their peers. Parents were able to come view the students' projects and hear all about them at an open house.

The students exhibited qualities of confidence, technology literacy, and were effective communicators in their presentations.
